The Wine

Perched on the highest peak in the Sta. Rita Hills, the upper elevation blocks of Lady of Guadalupe Vineyard are a steep, wind-battered site where the Pacific makes its presence felt every single day. Nutrient-poor, well-draining soils and relentless coastal winds stress the vines and concentrate the fruit, producing a Pinot Noir with more structure and intensity than the fog-softened blocks below – while still carrying the lifted acidity and coastal energy that define this corner of Santa Barbara.

Wild and energetic, with the focus and intensity of a site that never lets the vines get too comfortable.
